Safety Mode Off Apr 13 2021 SAFETY MODE OFF Risk taking is one of the essential roles that every human must play as long as he/she is still alive. It is essential that we all take risks to ensure a consistent life. I believe we all take risks one way or the other every day. When you think about living a good life, then you are set to take risks. A student that goes to school to gain knowledge will have to go through several processes most of which are not palatable. He has to take this risk to become something in life. Most people today find it very difficult to take risks, especially the important ones that demand a measure of sacrifice. This is probably because of fear. Such individuals are so involved in everything, that they fail to recognize the fact that we all need to be adventurous sometimes. The truth is that not every risk is worth taking. You must specifically be cautious about the choice of risks taken. This particular aspect is where most people get it wrong.
